Lawson Planning Partnership Ltd employee attains RTPI Chartered Town Planner status

Sandra Green, a Planner at Lawson Planning Partnership Ltd, has become a Chartered Town Planner, the ultimate qualification for the profession awarded exclusively by the Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI).

Sandra, who joined the firm in November 2017, obtained a Merit in the RTPI-accredited Postgraduate Diploma Environmental Planning from Anglia Ruskin University. Whilst a Licentiate member, Sandra has been building up her work experience at the company by co-ordinating and managing multi-disciplinary teams on major and complex planning projects, to ensure development potential is optimised for operational land and surplus assets.

Finally, following the RTPI's Licentiate Assessment of Professional Competence Sandra Green is now a RTPI Chartered Town Planner.

Sandra Green, Planner at LPP

"I am delighted that my dedication and commitment to becoming a Chartered Town Planner and the professional manner in which I conduct my planning work has been recognised and resulted in my successful election to the RTPI."

James Lawson, Director at LPP

"From the outset Sandra has fitted in very well with the LPP team, & applied herself in an Industrious & well organised way. Her good communication skills & thorough approach to work are qualities which make her an effective planning consultant, & looking ahead I am confident that Sandra will continue to hone her skills as a capable project manager"

The RTPI is Europe's largest professional body for planners, with 25,000 members worldwide working in public, private, charitable and education sectors. As well as promoting spatial planning, the Institute sets high standards for planning education and is the only body in the UK that accredits Chartered Town Planners.

Martine Koch, RTPI Head of Membership

"I congratulate Sandra Green for successfully making this important step in their career. Chartered Membership is the most highly sought after professional status for planners. It demonstrates to clients, peers, the public and employers around the world that the individual works to the highest professional and ethical standards."

All routes to become an RTPI Chartered Town Planner are competency-based to enable practitioners from different academic backgrounds and experience to demonstrate the high standards required.
